

Major Requirements: International Affairs

I. Foreign Language Requirement

This requirement helps students develop the language skills both required and expected in the practice of international affairs.

Students must prove 3rd year proficiency in a modern foreign language by examination or coursework. If you would like information on the Elliott School foreign language examinations, please contact your academic advisor.

If you were required to take the TOEFL or IELTS exam as part of your admissions application to GW, your 3rd year proficiency requirement will automatically be waived for International Affairs majors.

Major Requirements: International Affairs

II. Advanced Fundamentals

The Advanced Fundamentals build upon the Introduction to the Major and continue the education in the basic skills of international affairs through the lens of the disciplines central to (ECON, HIST, PSC) and relevant to (ANTH, GEOG) to the study of international affairs and their respective methodologies. It also imparts an understanding of at least two regions of the world outside of the United States.

Objective: This module promotes fundamental knowledge in the social sciences and teaches students how to apply that knowledge to issues in international affairs. It enables students to analyze problems in the field, generalize from that analysis, identify potential outcomes consistent with the theoretical models, and apply these theoretical models to different regions of the world. This module will allow students to explore different concentration themes in the International Affairs major.
