

AFRICA CONCENTRATION

DESCRIPTION

A comparative and international study of the countries of continental Africa. This concentration covers modern African history, regional economics, comparative politics, and regional politics. It deals with security and development issues on the continent as well as the policies of African countries towards countries in North America, Europe, and Asia.

LEARNING OBJECTIVE

Graduates of this concentration should be able to analyze and explain national and international events that involve African countries. They should also be able to formulate policies and strategies that address problems of that region and assess the effectiveness of those policies.

REQUIREMENTS

- Five courses listed supporting courses listed under this concentration in the Bulletin. At least two courses must be from Group A and at least two from Group B.
- Courses in Group A are typically in the social sciences and do not include the humanities. Courses in Group B are in history and other humanities disciplines, e.g., literature, film, religion, etc.
