

Diana Villiers Negroponte is a Public Policy Scholar at the Woodrow Wilson International Center for Scholars completing her book, Management of Power: James A Baker's role at the End of the Cold War. She is also Chair of the Wilson Council and a member of the Wilson Center's Mexico Institute for which she writes and speaks about Mexico and Central America. Previously, Dr. Negroponte was a Fellow at the Brookings Institution for over 7 years, devoting her time to issues in Latin America. She is an adjunct professor at George Washington University and has taught at Fordham University and Georgetown University

Prior to receiving her doctorate from Georgetown University, Diana was an associate at the law firm of Paul, Hastings, Janofsky & Walker concentrating on international trade and aviation law. She worked with the U.S. Chamber of Commerce in Mexico during the NAFTA negotiations with a particular focus on the dispute resolution chapter.

Diana has retained her commitment to social services, building houses in Latin America, Asia and the United States with Habitat for Humanity International, designing credit projects for the poor with Opportunity International and defending democracy and human rights with Freedom House. She has served on the board of all three organizations. She currently plays a leadership role in feeding the homeless in D.C.

Dr. Negroponte is the author of The Merida Initiative and Central America: the Challenges of Containing Public Insecurity and Criminal Violence, Brookings Working Report (2009), Seeking Peace in El Salvador: The Struggle to Reconstruct a Nation at the End of the Cold War, Palgrave Macmillan (2012), Editor of The End of Nostalgia: Mexico Confronts the Challenges of Global Competition, Brookings Institution Press (2013), En Busca de la Paz en El Salvador, Editorial Delgado (2016), articles in the Financial Times, International Trade Journal and national press, as well as TV appearances on News Hour, ABC and CNN. She is the proud mother of 5 children, 2 grandchildren and married to John D. Negroponte.